PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Dear Sirs;

This letter and attachments are another attempt to meet the regulatory requirements. The letter you rejected is a copy of the notice submitted in 1995 which resulted in a rate increase that only took three years to repay the CPA expenses. The address has been changed but the same group of regulatory termites still occupies the offices. Please note that the notice was sent with the Aug. statements which were mailed Aug. 13, 2004.

I have written the Sec. of State for details of the administratively dissolved corporation. I suspect that the corporation they intended to dissolve was Development, which should have been dissolved. Somehow they found it and sent a tax bill for a corporation that has not been in existence for 29 years. It has no bank account, no assets, no employees, and no tax liability. I'm not claiming this is the error but it sure is compatible with my view of government. The Service Company has always filed on time and paid its taxes on time.
